Professional Tip:

Do not evaluate your patient day-to-day but rather in 3-4 day periods to assess progress.

Organization: Health Sciences Centre & St. Boniface Hospital in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada

Years in the Field: 17

Focus: Minimizing pain and stress by reducing invasive testing in the preemie. Actively searches for accurate non-invasive testing to replace capillary or central sampling.

Premie Resource: Health Record

PremieWorld provides a number of free handouts to be used in the NICU and beyond in its "Freebies For You" section of the website.

This month's freebie is "Health Record." "Going from appointment to appointment can leave you frazzled on paperwork," comments Deb Discenza, co-Founder of PremieWorld, LLC. "We created this freebie to help caregivers save time on form completion and more." Parents and professionals alike will appreciate this freebie in that it is easy to print and reproduce.

Download it here: <http://preemie.us/preemiehealth> and check others here: <http://bit.ly/PremieFreebies>

Support: His Middle Name

With the very early birth of their son, the Lubins "didn't have a leg to stand on" and created their own community.

Year Established: 2011

Outreach: International

Web: www.hismiddlename.com

Background: The Lubins started the organization organically from friends and family locally and then grew from there with a strong online presence.

Programs: The family is very connected to the March of Dimes with speaking engagements, a March for Babies walking team and more:
<http://preemie.us/HisMiddleName>

Org: www.Plupp.org

From a father's multiple experiences with premature birth comes a free and easy way to give back with the use of search engine technology.

Website: www.plupp.org

Year Established: 2015

Outreach: Global

Focus: "www.Plupp.org gives every person globally with access to the Internet the ability and opportunity to donate to the cause of reducing premature birth rates and reducing death related to preterm birth with just the click of a mouse or touch of a button," says Director James Stockford. "This service is free and www.plupp.org has a special partnership with Yahoo! to provide this service so that it directly donates to premature birth charities. The more popular www.plupp.org becomes the more that can be donated to these vital causes."

Background: "After personally going through the experience of having two premature babies myself," notes Stockford, "I wanted to give back as much as possible in return for the medical and emotional aid that my family received during those difficult times."

Book: Bentley's Premie Blessing

The Details:

Written By:

Michelle Marie Stevens

Illustrated By:

Michelle Marie Stevens

Website:

www.premie blessings.com

Bentley's Premie Blessing is the perfect gift for the new preemie family in the NICU, especially ones with siblings at home trying to adjust to the radical change in their routine.

Written from a family's pet dog's perspective, the narrative is perfect for reading to a baby as well as to a new sibling trying to understand why Mom and/or Dad are not at home as usual.

With clear and friendly illustration, this is a book that will also be a welcome addition to the baby's book library at home.

COOL: We're giving away a copy of this very book to one new PremieWorld Twitter follower 3/31/15- 4/26/15 - www.twitter.com/premieworld*

Tips: Premie Parents are Powerful (Part I)

They say hindsight is 20/20 and that is so true. Deb Discenza, Publisher at PremieWorld, gives insight into what she believes Premie Parents in the NICU right now should know for sure:

Know that a premie parent's love is medicine. After having my daughter at 30-weeks gestation and later staring into her incubator in the NICU, I felt so lost, so useless as a parent. Nothing felt natural to me in those first few days and weeks. What did I know? I figured the medical staff knew more than I did. I wondered if it would matter at all if I was by her side in the NICU during the stay. What I know now is that the gentle lullabies I sang to my daughter while holding her, the Kangaroo Care sessions we did, the books I read to her – they all were a form of medicine as well. I helped to soothe her, as did my husband. Relieving her stress in the NICU chaos gave her the ability to rest and to sleep, which in turn helped her to grow and to thrive. That “medicine” continued at home where we worked through numerous developmental delays and took on a lot of therapies over the years. Yet it all came down to a moment this past week when my thriving 11.5 year old said, “Mom, thank you for all you do for me. You do a lot and I love you.” Love is the most powerful medicine of all.
