Advocate: Int'l Group B Strep Awareness Month

Many preemies are born due to a variety of infections. Awareness is key for parents to be in order to protect their baby in utero and in the days, weeks and months after birth. With this in mind, July is International Group B Strep Awareness Month. Learn more from Group B Strep International here: <http://www.groupbstrepinternational.org>.

Preemie Resource: Preemie Tough

PreemieWorld provides a number of free handouts to be used in the NICU and beyond in its "Freebies For You" section of the website.

This month's freebie is a preemie symbol: Preemie Tough. "Parents consistently refer to their preemies as amazing fighters so we created a logo with a theme that encompasses that in a fun and friendly way," notes PreemieWorld's Deb Discenza. "This logo is a perfect item for both family members and professionals to use on their social networks and blogs as a uniting symbol as we celebrate these resilient beings."

Support: Tiny Beating Hearts

After giving birth to a 25-week baby girl in 2009, Petra Akinti Onyegbule saw an abundance of preemie stories in western countries but not in Nigeria. From there the Tiny Beating Hearts Initiative was born.

Year Established: 2013

Outreach: Nigeria

Web: www.TinyBeatingHearts.org

Programs: Designing a grass roots advocacy program on healthy pregnancies with the objective of reducing preterm birth. Our focus groups are women (and men) in rural areas.

Org: Kindness Matters, Inc.

Bullying is the fear of every parent, preemie or not. Jacki James worked hard to help her 13-year old son, Peyton (a former preemie), manage endless teasing about his differences at school. In October 2014, he took his own life. His mother Jacki created Kindness Matters in his memory to create an alternative to anti-bullying campaigns to one of "pro-kindness."

Website: www.Kindness-Matters.org

Year Established: 2014

Focus: Pre-teens to teens but any age is appropriate.

Programs:

- o Weekly Kindness Challenges that provide an easy, specific task to show or spread kindness that week. These are aimed to be doable by all people of any age.

- o Jacki provides Kindness Matters presentations to schools and other groups to promote an environment of kindness within lives of young people.

- o Kindness Matters t-shirts and wristbands on sale on the website. All proceeds benefit the Peyton A. James Memorial Scholarship at the Texas A&M University Department of Veterinary Medicine (Peyton always wanted to be a vet).

Miracle Baby Shirts

The Details:

Name:

Tink and Key

Website:

www.tinkandkey.com

Parents of preemies are proud of their “miracle” babies so why not say so with a shirt?

Tink & Key, a website born out of a NICU Mom’s interest to celebrate miracles, has a full line of tees, onesies and more with a variety of sayings and each with great style. Each item is made with American Apparel Clothing (sweat-shop free).

In the spirit of giving back, the company also features an organization each month to which they donate 10% of the profits.

NICUs, we are picking one Premie Family “professional” subscriber to receive two infant-sized shirts. Not yet a subscriber? Sign up by 7/26/15: <http://bit.ly/PremieFam4Pros>

After the NICU: To Tell or Not to Tell?

It’s the big question as preemies grow up and head into the school years. Do you tell the team or see how your child does? Pros and cons:

- Pro: Teachers can keep an eye on your child.
- Con: You may feel that your child is being labeled.
- Pro: Informed, the teacher could be quick to bring up any concerns so as to be proactive.
- Con: The teacher is assuming the worst about your child based on birth history.

Our suggestion? Go meet with the school’s administrator or principal before enrollment and discuss it off-record. That way you can ask questions about assessments, services and more that might be available to your child.

Tip: Premies Are Tough (Part IV)

They say hindsight is 20/20 and that is so true. Deb Discenza, Publisher at PremieWorld, in this fourth installment, gives insight into what she believes Premie Parents in the NICU right now should know for sure about premie resiliency:

Day in and day out you are getting news that makes you nervous about your baby's outcome but make sure to remember that your premie is resilient.

Premies go through a rollercoaster of health issues in a matter of months, weeks, days and yes, hours and minutes. It is enough to give a parent a nervous breakdown watching one's own child go through challenge after challenge medically and wonder how they will survive and hopefully, thrive.

Born small, premies are quite resilient, much like their parent. Take a deep breath in and let it slowly out. Your baby may be having trouble today but look back at how far he/she has come and this hindsight view might give you a new perspective.

Premies are Tough. Download our Premie Tough logo and share it on your blog and social networks: <http://bit.ly/PremieTough>
